Primate Incidents in the United States

The following is a partial listing of incidents involving captive primates in the United States since 1990. These incidents have resulted in the deaths of 38 primates and one human as well as injuries to 236 humans. Contact PETA for documentation.

August 4, 2016/Virginia Beach, Virginia: A 9-year-old girl was bitten by a capuchin at the Virginia Beach Oceanfront. She was gathered there with a crowd to watch some summer performances. The man holding the monkey ran away with the animal before police and medics arrived. The girl was taken to the emergency room with a bite wound on her hand.

June 21, 2016/Springfield, Massachusetts: Dizzy, an 8-year-old guenon monkey, escaped from an enclosure at Busch Gardens. According to a spokesperson, the animal was on the loose for more than an hour.

June 16, 2016/Tampa, Florida: An orangutan escaped from an enclosure at Busch Gardens. According to the animal control officers searched for the animal, described as being 2 feet tall.

May 25, 2016/Jacksonville, Arkansas: After receiving reports that a monkey was spotted on General Samuel Road, animal control officers searched for the animal, described as being 2 feet tall.

May 1, 2016/Yemassee, South Carolina: Nineteen rhesus macaques escaped from an enclosure at the Alpha Genesis experimentation facility around 1:30 p.m. All had been accounted for by 7:30 p.m., although some had not been recaptured by that time—they had been spotted in trees on the property.

April 16, 2016/Sanford, Florida: A 25-pound black-handed spider monkey escaped from an enclosure at the Central Florida Zoo, causing the facility to shut down briefly. The monkey was recaptured using a net after about 20 minutes.

March 19, 2016/Albuquerque, New Mexico: Tika, a 2-year-old siamang, escaped from an enclosure at the ABQ BioPark Zoo. The park was closed for an hour in order to recapture her.

February 4, 2016/Minerva Park, Ohio: Police were searching for a monkey after receiving a report of what was believed to be a howler monkey running loose in the area.

December 2015/Turlock, California: A resident found a ring-tailed lemur in his backyard. The California Department of Fish and Wildlife caught the lemur and placed him at the Sacramento Zoo. Officials thought that he was likely part of the illegal “pet” trade.

November 19, 2015/Harlingen, Texas: A monkey was kept as a “pet” in a backyard cage escaped from the enclosure. Three people were bitten when they tried to capture the animal, including an 84-year-old woman who went to the hospital. Animal control was able to capture the monkey.

September 29, 2015/Sanford, Florida: Police were called when a monkey named Zeek started eating the contents of someone’s mailbox. When the patrol car arrived, Zeek began pulling the mailing off it. The person responsible for Zeek was able to retrieve him and take him home, where he was kept as a “pet.”

July 11, 2015/Memphis, Tennessee: Zimm, a 3-year-old monkey, was recaptured after having escaped from an enclosure at the Memphis Zoo nearly two days earlier. She was found in the zoo’s drainage-ditch system.

July 2, 2015/Los Angeles, California: According to a U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) inspection report, two cotton-top tamarins at the Los Angeles Zoo were discovered to be missing from the open enclosure that they were confined to. The enclosure had access points that would allow entry of unauthorized animals. The remains of one tamarin were found, but there was no evidence of the second, and he was presumed dead. A zoo representative stated that footage from cameras in the area showed a bobcat carrying off one tamarin. The bobcat was at large.

May 21, 2015/Lafayette, Louisiana: A macaque escaped from an enclosure at the University of Louisiana–Lafayette. (See February 7, April 5, and April 6, 2015, incidents.)

May 1, 2015/Los Angeles, California: According to a USDA inspection report, two Francois’ langurs escaped from a holding area at the Los Angeles Zoo after a keeper left the enclosure and secondary containment doors unsecured. The langurs walked into a keepers' bathroom, and a volunteer closed the door behind them. The langurs were netted, sedated, and returned to the holding area.

April 6, 2015/Lafayette, Louisiana: A macaque escaped from an enclosure at the University of Louisiana–Lafayette. (See February 7, April 5, and May 21, 2015, incidents.)

April 5, 2015/Lafayette, Louisiana: A macaque escaped from an enclosure at the University of Louisiana–Lafayette. (See February 7, April 6, and May 21, 2015, incidents.)

March 25, 2015/Charlotte, North Carolina: According to local media, a capuchin monkey named Carter attacked and scratched a maintenance worker in the parking lot of the Carolinas Medical Center-University. The maintenance worker had tried to contain Carter in a bin until animal control could arrive, but the monkey attacked him and then escaped into a nearby wooded area. He was captured the next day when he returned to the parking lot. Carter was kept as a "pet" and had been involved in an incident the previous year. The owner was to have produced the monkey for seizure following that incident since he was in violation of an ordinance that prohibited exotic animals within city limits, but he failed to do so.

February 7, 2015/Lafayette, Louisiana: Eight macaques escaped from the University of Louisiana–Lafayette. (See April 5, April 6, and May 21, 2015, incidents.)

January 2015/Albuquerque, New Mexico: Brian, a siamang in his late 20s, escaped into a neighboring enclosure at the ABQ BioPark Zoo, killing a lemur named Junior and injuring another named Buddy.

August 3, 2014/Riverside County, California: A woman was attacked by a capuchin monkey outside a pizzeria. She sustained a laceration to her forearm and was taken to a local hospital. The capuchin and two other monkeys were confiscated from the owner since she didn’t have a permit to have them. The capuchin involved in the attack was placed under a six-month quarantine.

July 10, 2014/St. Paul, Minnesota: Three gorillas escaped from an enclosure through an unlatched door, delaying the Como Park Zoo’s opening by 40 minutes. They were found wandering a hall located behind enclosures used to hold orangutans and gorillas.

June 25, 2014/Honolulu, Hawaii: Pulawa, a 15-year-old chimpanzee, used a barrel to escape from an enclosure at the Honolulu Zoo. He was shot with a tranquilizer dart and moved into sleeping quarters. He had been out of the enclosure for about an hour.

May 23, 2014/Maiden, North Carolina: A rhesus macaque named Zander jumped on the back of an employee at Buffalo Beals Animal Park and bit her on both ears when she entered the enclosure to clean it. After Zander was pulled from the employee, another caretaker grabbed the water bowl from the enclosure to change the water, which left a hole big enough for Zander to escape through. The macaque then attacked a 3-year-old, injuring both of the child’s legs and one arm.

April 10, 2014/Kansas City, Missouri: Seven chimpanzees escaped from an enclosure at the Kansas City Zoo. They used a large tree branch to access the wall of the exhibit in order to climb out. Patrons were moved into a locked building until all the chimpanzees were lured back into the enclosure with malted milk balls.

January 8, 2014/Gentry, Arkansas: According to a USDA inspection report, at the time of the inspection at least two lemurs were chewing on a live electrical wire outside the enclosure used to confine them.

January 2014/Vermilion, Ohio: An employee with Pat O’Brien Chevrolet was taken to an area hospital after a customer’s pet spider monkey, Brodi, bit him. The police investigated and discovered that the owner was in illegal possession of him. Although it was confirmed that Brodi had been vaccinated for rabies, he was euthanized. The rabies test came back negative.

October 31, 2013/Moyock, North Carolina: Four pet capuchins escaped from a private residence. One monkey bit a man while he was helping to recapture them. One monkey was shot and injured with a "conventional weapon," and another died after being shot with a tranquilizer. The three survivors were taken to the Currituck County Animal Control for quarantine.

October 23, 2013/Fredericksburg, Texas: A capuchin monkey escaped from a Birdshots Entertainment travel trailer and bit a neighbor on the elbow.

July 10, 2013/Independence, Kansas: Two capuchins escaped from the enclosures that they were confined to at the Ralph Mitchell Zoo. One was recaptured shortly afterward, but the second was found dead two days later on the zoo’s property.

June 21, 2013/Port Aransas, Texas: A capuchin monkey bit a teenage patron as the monkey was being exhibited by Birdshots Entertainment. This was the second such incident in two months. (See April 21, 2013.)

June 19, 2013/Miami-Dade County, Florida: Over a period of weeks, residents spotted a loose monkey in various neighborhoods. Police were unable to apprehend the animal, and the Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission warned people not to touch or attempt to recapture the monkey.

June 18, 2013/Conway, Arkansas: A “pet” macaque monkey escaped from an animal clinic where he was being treated. Joey broke the lock on his cage and opened the back door, triggering an alarm. Police were able to get him back into the building, but an officer was bitten on his knuckle as he was helping to put Joey back into a steel cage.

June 7, 2013/Alexandria, Louisiana: A monkey escaped from an enclosure at the Alexandria Zoological Park. He ran past patrons and climbed a tree, forcing the zoo to shut down until it was able to recapture him later that day.

June 2, 2013/St. Louis, Missouri: A 6-year-old boy sustained lacerations and bites to his arm from a “pet” Java macaque. The monkey’s guardian had taken the monkey and her dog to a dog event in a public park. The boy was bitten as he attempted to pet the dog.

May 18, 2013/Neville, Ohio: Authorities fatally shot a loose monkey whom residents spotted sitting and eating in a tree. The monkey was believed to have been someone’s “pet.”

April 21, 2013/Port Aransas, Texas: A capuchin monkey being exhibited by Birdshots Entertainment bit a patron on the thumb.

March 29, 2013/New Orleans, Louisiana: Kivuli, a colobus monkey at the Audubon Zoo, escaped from an enclosure, causing the zoo to shut down until he was recaptured.

March 27, 2013/Pawnee County, Oklahoma: A “pet” capuchin who had been loose for a week was recaptured after being lured with fruit by area residents. The owner had previously told the Pawnee County sheriff’s deputies that the capuchin had escaped from a cage and to shoot him if they found him.

January 21, 2013/North Miami Beach, Florida: Two lemurs escaped from a cage in which they were kept in the owners’ backyard. Before being recaptured, one attacked a 2-year-old girl and scratched her face.

December 4, 2012/Graceful, Texas: A lemur attacked a postal carrier as she was delivering mail to a rural address. As she was stopped at the mailbox, Keanu leapt into her vehicle and bit her on the arm and hand before jumping back out. Authorities took Keanu away to hold him for a 30-day quarantine.

October 24, 2012/Tampa Bay, Florida: A rhesus monkey who had eluded authorities for two years was finally recaptured after he bit a woman sitting in her backyard. The monkey was put under quarantine.

September 29, 2012/Cherokee, North Carolina: A capuchin named George was able to get off the island and access the barrier surrounding his enclosure at Santa’s Land. George then made contact with the public and bit a child. The USDA later fined Santa’s Land for this incident.

August 18, 2012/Honolulu, Hawaii: Elvis, a 14-year-old siamang gibbon, escaped from an enclosure at the Honolulu Zoo. He grabbed a volunteer and scratched the man’s left leg. Carbon dioxide dispensers were used to direct Elvis back to the cage.

August 11, 2012/Las Vegas, Nevada: C.J., a chimpanzee who had escaped from her home the previous month, escaped again. Police and animal control set up a perimeter in the neighborhood to contain her, and she was eventually shot with a tranquilizer and moved to a facility better equipped to handle her until a plan for her future could be made.

July 12, 2012/Las Vegas, Nevada: Two chimpanzees escaped from their owner’s home, which led to a nearly two-hour attempt by police to recapture them in a residential area. During this time, residents were advised to stay indoors or in their vehicles. Police shot and killed Buddy, a male chimpanzee, but were able to tranquilize and recapture C.J., Buddy’s female companion.

June 2012/Texas: A police officer making a routine traffic stop was bitten on the hand by a capuchin who jumped out from the backseat as the officer was serving a citation to the driver. Apparently, the monkey was used for photo opportunities, in which people have their photo taken with the animal.

May 12, 2012/Bordentown, New Jersey: One of three spider monkeys bit a child who was able to get through a split-rail barrier fence around the animals’ exhibit at the Animal Kingdom Zoo.

April 25, 2012/Boston, Massachusetts: A monkey escaped from an enclosure at Harvard Medical School and injured another monkey. (See October 7 and December 18, 2011, incidents.)
March 19, 2012/Buffalo, New York: A 24-year-old 400-pound male gorilla named Koga escaped from a cage at the Buffalo Zoo and bit a zookeeper on the hand and calf. Police had locked down the zoo, and Koga was tranquilized and captured in a zookeepers’ lounge.

February 19, 2012/Kansas City, Missouri: Two 19-year-old 400-pound gorillas escaped from enclosures at the Kansas City Zoo. Handlers used ladders to scale the retaining wall in order to escape to safety. Mbundi and Ntando were guided back to the holding area with water hoses.

January 2012/Chesapeake, Virginia: A capuchin escaped from an exotic-animal business, Spellbound, after his enclosure door was left open during feeding. Animal control recaptured the capuchin more than a month later.

December 18, 2011/Boston, Massachusetts: Several monkeys escaped from an enclosure at the Harvard Medical School when a food hopper had not been properly secured. (See October 7, 2011, and April 25, 2012, incidents.)

October 7, 2011/Boston, Massachusetts: A monkey escaped from an enclosure at Harvard Medical School. The animal was recaptured using a hand-held net. (See December 18, 2011, and April 25, 2012, incidents.)

August 12, 2011/Springfield, Missouri: A macaque monkey named Charlie bit an 8-year-old girl in a Walmart parking lot. Her family had parked next to a vehicle in which Charlie and the humans who kept him as a “pet” were parked. The girl reached in to pet Charlie, and he jumped up and bit her on the head. He was being tested for any diseases while the girl was treated with antibiotics and antivirals.

July 30, 2011/Las Vegas, Nevada: The Nevada Occupational Safety and Health Administration (NVOSHA) noted that the owner of the Southern Nevada Zoological-Botanical Park expected employees to enter the Barbary apes’ enclosure to feed, water, and clean them with no protection from a possible attack. When the apes were being moved from one enclosure to another, an ape scratched an employee. Later, that same employee along with two others “were asked to walk around the interior of the enclosure to simulate the animal’s [sic] troop,” again with no protection. In February 2012, NVOSHA marked the direct contact with primates as a serious violation and fined the facility $4,200, which it ultimately paid.

July 2, 2011/Jasper, New Jersey: A baboon claimed by the Six Flags Great Adventure theme park evaded capture by local officials for three days before being caught 10 miles away from the facility on a farm. Police received reports of more than a dozen sightings and warned residents to stay indoors during that time.

April 2011/Surry County, Virginia: According to local news station WTKR, a Java macaque attacked his owner, injuring the man’s nose and wrist. Authorities were not notified until the man checked himself into a local hospital. The report also noted that in a separate incident in 2010, another man had lost both of his thumbs after his “pet” capuchin monkey attacked him.

March 15, 2011/West Knoxville, Tennessee: Three police officers, an animal control officer, and a crime scene technician were dispatched to a local residence after a report that a “pet” capuchin monkey had been found in a backyard tree. The 4-pound, 46-year-old monkey was recaptured when her caretaker eventually arrived on the scene.

March 11, 2011/Salt Lake City, Utah: All four spider monkeys at the Hogle Zoo escaped from an enclosure and were seen climbing trees and approaching local wildlife, all while in close proximity to the public, before keepers recaptured them.

March 2, 2011/Fort Madison, Iowa: Authorities discovered that a 10-year-old child who had been taken to the Fort Madison Hospital for a cat bite had actually been bitten by a “pet” macaque.

January 14, 2011/Scottsbluff, Nebraska: A keeper at the Riverside Discovery Center was attacked by an adult chimpanzee when she attempted to pet the animal. When the chimpanzee grabbed the woman’s hand, the woman began screaming, which attracted another chimpanzee, who also grabbed her hand. The keeper’s index and ring fingers on one hand were bitten off at the knuckles, and the middle finger was lacerated. She was taken to a hospital for treatment.

January 10, 2011/Meigs, Georgia: A capuchin with Brian Staples’ traveling exhibit escaped while he was being transferred from his primary enclosure. Sven was missing for two days in temperatures that ranged from 35 to 43 degrees Fahrenheit.

December 22, 2010/Miami, Florida: A “pet” capuchin monkey escaped and bit a person, who was taken to the hospital. The Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission took possession of the monkey to determine if the animal had rabies.

November 7, 2010/Oneida Castle, New York: Robert Jones’ 8-year-old “pet” capuchin monkey, Jada, escaped from Jones’ home by opening a screen door. The animal wandered into a neighbor’s yard and attacked a woman who was outside playing with her son. Jada jumped onto the woman’s arm and then bit her finger when she reached out to keep the monkey away from the child. The woman was taken to the hospital for puncture wounds. The fire department, state police, and sheriff were called to the scene. Jada was captured and killed in order to be tested for rabies.

November 2010/Phoenix, Arizona: A “pet” rhesus macaque bit a person on the hand and was subsequently killed.

October 19, 2010/Kansas City, Missouri: Mark Archigo’s adult “pet” chimpanzee, Sueko, escaped from a cage inside a truck and rampaged through a Kansas City neighborhood for 40 minutes. Sueko charged at two young girls who were out for a morning walk, opened the passenger door of a sport utility vehicle that drove into the neighborhood, broke a gate and a fence, and pounded on parked vehicles, passing cars, and the front door of a house. As authorities attempted to tranquilize the animal, Sueko charged a police car, pushed a trash can against its front bumper, climbed onto the car’s hood, pounded on the roof, and kicked the windshield, breaking it. Sueko was finally recaptured when she walked into Archigo’s van. Archigo has been in and out of legal trouble over Sueko since 1995 (see the entries titled “2000/Jackson County, Missouri,” and “1995/Kansas City, Missouri”).

September 2010/San Antonio, Texas: A spider monkey traveled at least 6 miles in one day and was on the loose for nine days before being tranquilized and recaptured.

August 28, 2010/Miami, Florida: A white-handed gibbon escaped an enclosure at Jungle Island after a worker left the gate open. The gibbon jumped into a tiger enclosure, and a 500-pound tiger jumped over a fence and escaped into the park while chasing the ape. At one point, the tiger came face to face with a 2-year-old toddler. More than 100 park visitors were ushered into a dark barn for protection. Four people were hurt during the chaos and were treated for minor injuries. A fifth person was transported to a hospital after suffering a panic attack. The gibbon was later found on a picnic table and recaptured.

July 31, 2010/Greenwich, New York: A lemur at the Ashville Game Farm bit a 7-year-old boy. The boy was petting the lemur as other people were feeding the animal when the boy was bitten on the thumb. The victim received a series of rabies shots, and a judge ordered that three lemurs at the facility be killed and tested for rabies.

July 21, 2010/Hamilton County, Indiana: A 40-pound, 3-foot-tall “pet” patas monkey injured a teenage boy and bit a family dog on the ear after escaping from a cage and running through the family’s house for 20 minutes. Someone in the house called 911 and told the dispatcher that the monkey was a dangerous wild animal. A witness to the attack on the boy remarked that he had “never seen any animal jump on top of somebody and just start attacking him.” Family members locked themselves in different rooms to avoid the monkey until police, paramedics, and animal control responded to the 911 call.

July 21, 2010/Mechanicsville, Virginia: Six chimpanzees escaped an enclosure at Windy Oaks Animal Farm when a gate was left open. Two male chimpanzees were still on the loose when animal control received a call about the incident. Upon arriving at the scene, the animal control officer was advised by Curtis Shepperson, owner of Windy Oaks, to stay in his car in order to avoid further agitating the chimpanzees. Windy Oaks did not have knowledgeable staff or equipment on site to tranquilize the escaped chimpanzees. At least two hours after animal control was first called to the scene, a sheriff’s deputy shot one of the chimpanzees with a dart, and the animal was returned to the enclosure. Animal control officials and sheriff’s deputies searched the compound for the second chimpanzee but could not find him. He was recaptured the next day. According to Windy Oaks’ veterinarian, this escape was the third such incident at the facility.

July 18, 2010/Catskill, New York: A woman was mauled by a “pet” capuchin monkey who was being kept at the Kaaterskill Lodge. The victim was taking photographs of the monkey when the animal jumped out of the enclosure and attacked her. The woman was left with a scar down her cheek and had to receive rabies shots because Allen Hirsch, the owner of the lodge, disappeared with the monkey after the attack.

July 17, 2010/Wichita, Kansas: Nine chimpanzees escaped an enclosure at the Sedgwick County Zoo and were found in a maintenance area when keepers arrived at work in the morning. Eight of the chimpanzees were returned to the enclosure, but one adult male was loose for two hours before being tranquilized and recaptured.

March 29, 2010/Chesapeake, Virginia: Babe Hamerick was attacked for the second time in two weeks by Noah, his “pet” capuchin monkey. The monkey reportedly went “berserk” and attacked Hamerick’s legs and bit his left hand, severing his pinky finger. Police, animal control, and paramedics were called to the scene, and the victim was taken to a hospital, where he underwent surgery for his injuries.

March 17, 2010/Chesapeake, Virginia: Babe Hamerick was attacked by his “pet” capuchin monkey, Noah, when he accidentally stepped on the monkey’s foot. The man described the attack as worse than war, which he claimed was “a breeze compared to my little fight with [Noah, which] cut the vein, tore ligaments out of my wrists. I’m pumping blood all over.” His injuries were treated at a hospital.

March 4, 2010/St. Petersburg, Florida: A rhesus macaque was shot twice with tranquilizer darts but managed to elude wildlife officials who were attempting to capture the animal. The monkey had been on the loose for more than a year.

February 2010/Palm Harbor, Florida: Two chimpanzees at Suncoast Primate Sanctuary, a roadside zoo, escaped from a cage that was not properly secured. One of the animals, described as typically gentle, relentlessly attacked and chased a female volunteer. The victim, who escaped the attack by locking herself in a bathroom, was hospitalized for treatment of serious injuries, including a deep laceration on the back of her head, damaged tendons in her right hand, and bite wounds on her thigh, back, and abdomen. When a sheriff’s deputy responded to the incident, he was denied access and reported that zoo staff were “very uncooperative and intentionally deceptive and evasive.”

2010/Jacksonville, North Carolina: A pigtail macaque at the Lynnwood Park Zoo was shot to death after biting the roadside zoo’s owner.

November 22, 2009/LaPorte, Indiana: A 10-month-old girl was attacked by a “pet” Java macaque belonging to Richard and Laura Burlos. The attack occurred when the girl was held too close to the cage. The monkey grabbed the hood of the infant’s coat, as well as her hair, causing the baby’s head to strike the metal cage repeatedly. The baby sustained a “rope burn” to her neck that was caused by the drawstring on her coat and had red marks on the back of her head because her head had hit the cage.

November 12, 2009/Tampa, Florida: A macaque got loose in a residential neighborhood. It was not known where the monkey escaped from or how the animal got loose.

October 2009/Pine Mountain, Georgia: A mangabey at Wild Animal Safari escaped while staff members were moving the animal from one enclosure to another. The monkey was shot and killed by zookeepers after climbing the zoo’s perimeter fence.

September 6, 2009/Scottsbluff, Nebraska: Four spider monkeys escaped from an enclosure at the Riverside Zoo while they were being fed. One of the monkeys attacked a zookeeper, who sustained bites to her arms and legs. The bites required multiple stitches. Three of the monkeys were quickly recaptured, but the fourth monkey remained loose on zoo grounds for approximately five hours.

September 1, 2009/Los Angeles, California: Two chimpanzees escaped from their crates while they were being unloaded at the Los Angeles Zoo following their transfer from Wildlife Waystation, which had been threatened by a wildfire. One chimpanzee climbed over the fence and into Griffith Park, where she was spotted approximately an hour later and secured in the back of a truck. The other chimpanzee remained loose on zoo grounds for 20 minutes before being tranquillized.

June 12, 2009/Columbia, South Carolina: A 390-pound gorilla at the Riverbanks Zoo and Garden escaped by grabbing some low-hanging bamboo, scaling the 12-foot-4-inch wall of the enclosure, and climbing over two high-voltage security wires. The animal rushed at two food-service employees, pushing one aside and knocking the other down before jumping back into the enclosure. One of the employees was taken to a hospital, where he was treated for cuts and bruises.

June 5, 2009/Candia, New Hampshire: A macaque escaped from an enclosure at Charmingfare Farm when a worker left two doors unlocked. The worker was bitten on his calf as he tried to recapture the animal. As a result of his injuries, the worker required medical attention.

May 26, 2009/Columbus, Ohio: A gorilla at the Columbus Zoo and Aquarium escaped from an enclosure through a door that was improperly secured and walked into a hallway used by zookeepers. Visitors were evacuated from the area, and the zoo’s entrance was closed for approximately 45 minutes. While the entrance was closed, the gorilla was coaxed back into the enclosure.

April 21, 2009/Corpus Christi, Texas: A squirrel monkey bit a man who was transporting the animal to Michigan. Animal control officers planned to quarantine the monkey for three months to test for diseases.

April 18, 2009/Salem, Oregon: A man’s “pet” monkey bit a 6-year-old girl at a park. The monkey lunghed at the girl, grabbed her hair, scratched her, and bit her under the left eye, leaving two puncture marks. The man left the park before authorities arrived. The girl was taken to an urgent-care facility, where she was treated.

April 14, 2009/Springfield, Missouri: A rhesus macaque escaped from an exotic-animal menagerie owned by Debby Rose. The macaque went to a nearby home, and when the homeowner knocked on a window to scare the animal off, the macaque lunged at the window.

April 3, 2009/Portland, Oregon: Nine macaques escaped from the Oregon Health & Science University when a worker left the cage unlocked. It took almost three days to recapture all the monkeys.

March 30, 2009/Winston, Missouri: A 9-year-old chimpanzee named Timmy escaped from a cage (which measured 10 feet by 6 feet) at a private residence and ran loose on a nearby state highway. Sheriff's deputies were dispatched to help recapture the chimpanzee, who at one point opened a deputy's patrol car door, grabbed the deputy's leg, and tried to strike him. When the chimpanzee attempted to attack the man again, the chimpanzee was shot and killed. The deputy suffered minor injuries, and the owners of the chimpanzee suffered cuts and scratches.

March 13, 2009/Fruitland Park, Florida: A spider monkey named Reggie escaped from the Liebling Family Circus when the circus owner failed to latch a leash correctly. The monkey fled into nearby woods and was not recaptured until nearly five weeks later.

February 25, 2009/East Ridge, Tennessee: An obese “pet” spider monkey was found wandering through someone's yard and was captured by animal control officials.

February 25, 2009/Athens, Georgia: An animal-care technician at the University of Georgia suffered a severe bite to her thumb while cleaning the cage of a capuchin monkey. She was taken by ambulance to the hospital and later transferred to a hand specialist in Atlanta for additional treatment.

February 19, 2009/Oklahoma City, Oklahoma: An orangutan named Elok escaped from an enclosure at the Oklahoma City Zoo by climbing into the moat and then over the exhibit wall. Twenty zoo visitors were ushered into buildings until Elok was recaptured approximately 100 feet from the enclosure.

February 19, 2009/Seattle, Washington: A De Brazza's monkey at the Woodland Park Zoo escaped from an enclosure by swimming across a moat and climbing a rock wall. The zoo was evacuated, and the monkey was on the loose for approximately 25 minutes before being tranquilized and recaptured. Other monkeys had previously escaped from the same enclosure.

February 16, 2009/Stamford, Connecticut: Sandra Herold’s 200-pound, 14-year-old “pet” chimpanzee named Travis escaped from the house and attacked a woman, inflicting massive injuries to her face and hands. The woman required more than seven hours of stabilizing surgery by four teams of doctors. She reportedly lost her hands, nose, lips, and eyelids in the attack. The bone structure of her face was also damaged, and she might have lost her vision and suffered brain damage. In 2011 she had a face transplant. At least three other people—including two police officers—were injured during the fracas. In an effort to stop the attack, Herold stabbed the chimpanzee repeatedly with a butcher knife. Police officers shot him numerous times before he made his way back into the house where he died. Neighbors reported that they often saw Travis roaming the streets in the neighborhood, sometimes unleashed, and that he frequently rode around in trucks with his owners. Travis had been involved in at least two previous incidents (see incidents titled “October 19, 2003,” and “1996/Stamford, Connecticut”).

February 2, 2009/Flour Bluff, Texas: An escaped or abandoned ring-tailed lemur was discovered when children were seen playing with the animal outdoors. The animal, who had a hurt arm and reportedly had possibly gotten a little nippy with the children, was seized by authorities, and the owners were ticketed for illegally possessing an exotic animal.

January 30, 2009/New Orleans, Louisiana: An orangutan named Berani escaped from an enclosure at the Audubon Zoo by stretching a T-shirt to help him scale a 10½-foot wall. He then wrapped the shirt around an electric wire surrounding the exhibit and finally swung out of the exhibit. The orangutan stood on a boardwalk with zoo visitors nearby for approximately 10 minutes before returning to the exhibit.

January 24, 2009/Naples, Florida: A worker at Gary’s Paradise Gardens was attacked by a capuchin monkey. The monkey escaped through a space that was created when the worker removed the food bowl from the side of the cage. The woman was bitten on her right leg, lower arm, and hand and required stitches for some of the wounds.

2009/Mechanicsville, Virginia: Chimpanzees at Windy Oaks Animal Farm broke some welds on an enclosure, and two male chimpanzees pushed through a wire panel, opened a door, and escaped.
November 10, 2008/Carbon County, Montana: A woman was taken to a hospital for treatment after a chimpanzee named Conner latched on to her arm with his teeth. The woman lost 6 to 8 inches of skin. Conner was one of two chimpanzees who escaped from the home of Jeanne Rizzotto and ran to a neighbor’s yard, where they were seen chasing cats up trees, swinging from the roof of the house, and getting into cars and trucks. One of the chimpanzees was also seen crossing a highway. The bite victim had been trying to prevent Conner from entering a home. The animals were recaptured, and Conner was quarantined at Rizzotto’s home.

September 24, 2008/Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania: An 18-pound macaque monkey bit and then mauled the hand of a University of Pittsburgh laboratory technician. The macaque grabbed a pole that the technician was using to test the animal’s water system, pulled the woman’s hand into the cage, and bit her palm. “My hand was in its mouth,” the woman said. “It was clamping down on it and munching on it for up to a minute. I had no choice but to pull my hand out in shreds.” The animal’s teeth penetrated to the bone, and the woman sustained bone, tendon, and nerve damage. She underwent three surgeries to treat recurring infections and was released from the hospital after eight days, at which time she still had no feeling in two fingers and was awaiting results of blood tests on the monkey to determine if she had been exposed to hepatitis B or other infections.

August 8, 2008/Bend, Oregon: A 120-pound chimpanzee at Chimps, Inc., escaped from an unlocked enclosure and bit an intern. The intern was treated at the scene by firefighters and then driven to a hospital.

August 2008/Cincinnati, Ohio: A white-handed gibbon escaped from a cage at the Cincinnati Zoo and made his way to the parking lot where he bit a visitor on the leg. The gibbon was quarantined, and the zoo decided that he would no longer be allowed outdoors.

July 2008/Orange Park, Florida: A Japanese macaque was spotted running loose in a subdivision. Wildlife officials attempted to capture the animal with a trap and warned the public that macaques have sharp teeth and are prone to biting.

June 27, 2008/Devore, California: A chimpanzee named Moe escaped from a cage at Jungle Exotics, surprised construction workers when he wandered into a house next-door, and then continued on into the San Bernardino National Forest. After more than a month, search efforts were called off because of mounting expenses. Eight months later, Moe had still not been found.

June 11, 2008/Michigan City, Indiana: A spider monkey escaped from an enclosure at the Washington Park Zoo by using a garden hose to scale the wall of the moat. The moat had been emptied of water and was being cleaned by workers. The monkey was recaptured at a nearby boat dealership.

June 5, 2008/Queens, New York: A 22-month-old girl had her finger bitten off by a neighbor’s “pet” capuchin monkey when she stuck her fingers through her backyard fence and into the pen of the monkey who was caged next to the fence. Doctors worked for 12 hours attempting to reattach the girl’s finger but were unsuccessful. The monkey was euthanized in order to be tested for rabies.

May 17, 2008/Los Angeles, California: A 29-year-old orangutan at the Los Angeles Zoo punched a hole in the mesh of an exhibit and escaped into a holding area behind a cage. Zoo officials ushered visitors to the zoo exit while the orangutan was sedated by zookeepers.

May 17, 2008/Tampa, Florida: A 10-year-old orangutan escaped from an enclosure at Busch Gardens by scaling a 12-foot wall and climbing onto the roof of an exhibit, where she was just feet away from zoo visitors. The public, including a group of nearby children, was evacuated from the area. The orangutan was lured back to the enclosure nearly one hour after she escaped.

April 21, 2008/Polk County, Florida: Fifteen patas monkeys escaped from Safari Wild by swimming across a 60-foot-wide moat and then climbing a 28-foot fence. One monkey was shot to death, and it took nearly eight months to recapture the rest of them.

April 11, 2008/Trenton, Michigan: A 6-year-old girl was bitten on the finger by a “pet” Java macaque who was being walked on a leash near the church where the girl was playing. The girl had to undergo several tests as a result of the bite, and the monkey was expected to be euthanized.

April 5, 2008/Addison, Texas: Two lemurs at the Trager Snake Farm were quarantined after biting or scratching a child.

March 21, 2008/Fresno, California: A black-and-white colobus monkey escaped from an enclosure at the Fresno Chaffee Zoo. The eastern portion of the zoo was closed to the public as zoo staff members attempted to recapture the monkey. Two and a half hours after the escape, he was shot with a tranquilizer dart and taken to the zoo hospital to recover.
March 14, 2008/Virginia: A 6-year-old chimpanzee named Mikey, taken by Party Safari Zoo to a studio to appear in a commercial, injured a woman by biting and/or scratching her face and shoulder. Mikey had bitten another woman five months earlier (see the incident titled “October 23, 2007”).

March 2008/New Albany, Indiana: A child visiting a home was bitten by the owner’s “pet” capuchin monkey. The monkey was quarantined while county officials worked to obtain information about the animal’s health.

February 29, 2008/Gilbert, Arizona: A 3-year-old boy was bitten on the wrist by his family’s “pet” lemur. According to a local official, the emergency crew that responded to the incident reported that the bite was down to the bone. The boy was taken to a hospital for treatment.

February 28, 2008/Spokane, Washington: A “pet” macaque monkey who escaped from his owners’ home chased some boys who were walking a dog and bit one of the boys on the thumb; charged at a woman, grabbed her leg, and bit it; and bit an 18-year-old girl on the leg. The monkey was quarantined to be monitored for disease and ultimately euthanized to be tested for rabies.

December 2, 2007/Rutherford College, North Carolina: A grocery store clerk was bitten by a customer’s 18-inch-tall “pet” monkey when she reached out to pet the animal. The monkey bit and scratched her right cheek just below the eye. The victim was treated at a local hospital for the bite and put on strong antibiotics.

November 8, 2007/Columbia County, Georgia: A 17-month-old boy was bitten by a baboon with the Eudora Farms petting zoo at the Columbia County Fair. The boy’s father lifted him to feed the animal through the cage, and the baboon bit the child’s hand.

November 6, 2007/Dripping Springs, Texas: A worker at Sunrise Exotic Ranch, a chimpanzee-breeding facility, was bitten by a chimpanzee named Ginny while she was handing blankets to the animals through a feeding tray. Ginny reached through a rusted hole in the tray and grabbed the worker’s hand. When the woman was able to pull her hand out of the cage, one of her fingers was gone and two others were nearly severed. After multiple surgeries, including transplants and skin grafts, her hand is still disfigured and curled into a ball. The victim amassed more than $100,000 in medical bills.

October 23, 2007/Maryland: A 5½-year-old chimpanzee named Mikey, taken by Party Safari Zoo to a studio to appear in a commercial, bit a woman’s arm while posing for photographs with studio employees.

September 28, 2007/Dallas, Texas: An elderly spider monkey escaped the enclosure that she shared with two other monkeys at the Dallas Zoo. The monkey was loose for approximately 20 minutes.

September 22, 2007/Columbia, Missouri: A woman known for carrying her “pet” rhesus macaque into stores and to public events took the animal to a local park where the macaque bit a 7-year-old boy and an 11-year-old girl. The woman quickly left the park and was sought by local health officials for questioning.

August 13, 2007/Tupelo, Mississippi: For the second time in two weeks, a white-faced capuchin monkey named Oliver escaped from the Tupelo Buffalo Park and Zoo. He was found the following day, approximately 4 miles from the park, and returned to the zoo. One man was bitten on the hand during the attempt to capture Oliver. This was Oliver’s third escape (see the incidents titled “July 31, 2007,” and “2001”).

August 8, 2007/Madison, Wisconsin: A 1-year-old “pet” capuchin monkey bit a 21-year-old woman on the thumb at a beer garden and then eluded police for an hour before being recaptured. The monkey was declared dangerous by the Madison Environmental Health Services Department and was quarantined to be monitored for disease, and the owner was ordered to remove the animal from the city upon release from quarantine. The monkey had previously bitten at least one other person (see the incident titled “July 11, 2007”).

July 31, 2007/Tupelo, Mississippi: A capuchin monkey named Oliver escaped from a cage at Tupelo Buffalo Park and Zoo and eluded capture for nearly a week before being recaptured. Zoo staff warned the public that Oliver would bite. This was Oliver’s second escape (see the incident titled “2001”).

July 11, 2007/Madison, Wisconsin: A “pet” capuchin monkey was placed under home quarantine after biting someone.

June 30, 2007/Cherokee, North Carolina: A capuchin monkey at Santa’s Land theme park escaped from the island where the monkeys were kept and was loose overnight before being recaptured the next evening. It was believed that the animal used low-hanging tree limbs to scale the wall and the high-voltage wire that surrounded the island.

June 5, 2007/Rockwell, North Carolina: A colobus monkey escaped from an enclosure at the Metrolina Wildlife Park by running past a worker as she entered the cage. The monkey was chased around the zoo grounds by the zoo owner before being recaptured.

April 24, 2007/Rankin County, Mississippi: A “pet” macaque monkey attacked an IRS agent. Although the monkey’s canine teeth had been removed, the agent sustained bites and scratches on her face and arms.

April 8, 2007/Otis, Oregon: A 12-year-old “pet” capuchin monkey escaped from a cage, ran through the neighborhood, attempted to attack residents, and cornered one man in his garage before being recaptured.

2007/Olmsted Falls, Ohio: A rhesus macaque scratched a girl at Burnett’s Pet Farm. According to Inspector Stacey Short of the Cuyahoga County Board of Health, 80 to 90 percent of macaque monkeys carry the herpes simian B virus, a disease that can be spread through scratches and is almost always fatal to humans.

December 25, 2006/French Settlement, Louisiana: An 8-year-old boy was bitten twice on the arm and shoulder and suffered cuts and bruises when a “pet” ring-tailed lemur leapt from a roof and attacked him. The lemur was kept on a large estate, where the animal roamed freely and could not be located after the attack. The boy underwent four rounds of injections to prevent rabies and more than two weeks after the incident still had a fever and periodic headaches.

December 1, 2006/Nahunta, North Carolina: A “pet” Japanese macaque belonging to Frankie Piscopo escaped from Piscopo’s home and was on the loose for almost two months before being recaptured more than 11 miles away.

October 28, 2006/Marquette County, Wisconsin: A woman was taken to the hospital after being bitten by a lemur at an exotic animal farm.

September 22, 2006/Horn Lake, Mississippi: A “pet” bonnet macaque knocked out the window frame of a cage and escaped into the neighborhood. He ran for one and a half blocks and attacked an animal control officer before being recaptured.

August 28, 2006/Chicago, Illinois: A 15-year-old girl was hospitalized in serious condition after being attacked by a “pet” rhesus macaque monkey. The girl’s arm was reportedly “bitten to the bone.” The agitated monkey attempted to escape from the house as animal control officers worked to recapture him.

June 1, 2006/Naples, Florida: A mustached guenon at the Naples Zoo swam from the island where she and a male companion were housed and escaped to a wooded area of the zoo.

March 8, 2006/Bell County, Texas: A person bitten by a “pet” rhesus macaque was taken to the hospital for treatment. The monkey was killed to be tested for rabies.

February 3, 2006/Columbus, Ohio: A zookeeper at the Columbus Zoo was bitten while feeding a grape to an adult bonobo, also known as a “pygmy chimpanzee.” The zookeeper lost the tip of her finger and was treated at a hospital. All the zoo’s bonobos were isolated for 14 days to be monitored for health issues.

December 29, 2005/unknown location: A capuchin monkey who was being exhibited by Patricia Dawdy bit and/or scratched an 8-year-old boy, causing one or more injuries that required ongoing medical attention.

December 1, 2005/Covington, Kentucky: A “pet” monkey escaped and led authorities on a two-day chase through the neighborhood before being recaptured. A primate expert was concerned that the animal might suffer from frostbite while on the loose, and an animal control officer noted that the animal appeared to suffer from a cough. A monkey had been loose on the same block one year earlier.

November 14, 2005/Arizona: Several children were attacked and two were bitten when a “pet” monkey escaped from a cage and tore through a neighbor’s birthday party.

October 6, 2005/Eureka, California: Bill, the solitary chimpanzee at the Sequoia Park Zoo, escaped from a cage and wandered one and a half blocks from the zoo before it was discovered that he was missing. Bill was coaxed back to the cage by one of the zookeepers. This was Bill’s second escape from the zoo—about 10 years previously, the door to Bill’s cage was left open and he wandered off.

September 10, 2005/Royal, Nebraska: Workers at Zoo Nebraska failed to properly lock a chimpanzee cage after cleaning, and all four animals in the cage made a break for freedom. The chimpanzees confronted zoo visitors, and at least one of the animals—possibly all four—walked into the town of Royal, where they attempted to enter businesses and where one chimp allegedly chased a 15-year-old boy into his home and another threw a grill at a van. When the animals tried to enter the building where zoo visitors and employees had taken refuge, three of the four chimpanzees were shot and killed. The surviving chimpanzee was transferred to an exotic-animal dealer in Missouri.
August 29, 2005/Springdale, Ohio: A monkey with the Hendricks Bros. Circus was frightened by a train whistle and fled into a nearby wooded area. He was found the next day, damp and hungry, huddled in the roof area of a picnic pavilion at a park.

August 27, 2005/San Antonio, Texas: A young chimpanzee escaped through a hole in the chain-link fencing of a cage at Primarily Primates, where many of the cages for the more than 600 primates were secured with only a small piece of wire.

July 20, 2005/Racine, Wisconsin: Max, a 19-year-old orangutan at the Racine Zoo, escaped into a hallway that connected to other zoo exhibits and three hours later was lured back to a cage with food.

July 11, 2005/Caldwell, Ohio: Two “pet” monkeys belonging to Hollis McInturff escaped their cage. One was recaptured after running loose for several hours. The second, a rhesus macaque, attacked a 20-year-old man who stopped his truck in order to avoid hitting the monkey on the road. The monkey jumped in the truck and bit him on the leg. The man was treated at a hospital and received a tetanus shot. Ten days after escaping, the monkey remained on the loose.

July 5, 2005/Chicago, Illinois: A 350-pound male silverback gorilla attacked an intern working in a habitat at the Lincoln Park Zoo. The gorilla shoved the woman down and “mouthed” her, pressing his lips and teeth against her back. She sustained puncture wounds and scratches as well as a sprained ankle and was treated by paramedics before being taken to the hospital.

June 2005/Morehead, Kentucky: A monkey reached through a car window and grabbed and bit a clerk’s hand at the drive-thru window of a Viking BP Mart while his owner, Jamie Dehart, was picking up an order.

May 7, 2005/Huntington, West Virginia: A leashed “pet” monkey who had been taken to a shopping center bit a 13-year-old girl in the parking lot. A woman holding the leash had indicated that the animal was friendly, but when the girl and her father approached to pet the monkey, the monkey jumped on the girl’s leg and bit her kneecap and finger. She was treated at a hospital.

March 3, 2005/Caliente, California: Four adult chimpanzees escaped from their cage at Animal Haven Ranch. The two male chimpanzees attacked a couple who were visiting their “pet” chimpanzee at the facility. The woman’s thumb was bitten off, and her husband was severely mauled. The chimpanzees bit off his nose, an eye, part of his cheek, lips, most of his fingers, both testicles, and much of the flesh from his buttocks, face, and left foot. According to a medic at the scene, “His face was gone.” The chimpanzees who attacked, both former “show biz” chimps raised at Bob Dunn’s Animal Services, were shot and killed. The gunfire frightened the two female chimpanzees who ran into the hills and were on the loose for several hours before being recaptured. Three months and a dozen surgeries later, the man was pulled out of a medically induced coma.

December 9, 2004/Detroit, Michigan: A student was bitten by a cinnamon ringtail cebus monkey at a wildlife show-and-tell at Wayne State University. The monkey was part of a menagerie brought by Chicago-based Bill Hoffman’s Animal Rentals.

November 26, 2004/Evansville, Indiana: An ambulance was called to the Hadi Shrine Circus at Roberts Stadium after a circusgoer was bitten on the cheek by a chimpanzee belonging to Zoppe-Rosaire Chimpanzees while posing for pictures. The patient was treated at the hospital for a puncture wound.

November 12, 2004/Palm Springs, California: A 16-year-old chimpanzee from Dan Westfall’s private menagerie escaped and ran loose in a residential neighborhood, banging on windows and pounding on doors. Police steered him back to Westfall’s home.

October 14, 2004/Fresno, California: The Chaffee Zoo evacuated visitors after an orangutan unraveled the netting on a cage and crawled out. She was loose for 10 minutes.

October 9, 2004/Gentry, Arkansas: A woman feeding animals at the Wild Wilderness Drive-Thru Safari was bitten by a chimpanzee who reached through the bars of the cage, grabbed her, and bit off much of her hand, including two fingers.

August 1, 2004/Brooklyn, New York: A 5-year-old macaque, used as a so-called “service animal,” attacked and bit a 2-year-old boy being wheeled by his grandparents in a shopping cart at a grocery store.

July 14, 2004/St. Louis, Missouri: A zookeeper at the Saint Louis Zoo was taken to the hospital after she was bitten by an orangutan while feeding the animal.

July 6, 2004/St. Charles, Minnesota: Two people agreed to undergo a series of rabies shots after they were bitten by a capuchin monkey who escaped from the Staples Safari Zoo during an appearance at the Winona County fairgrounds. The monkey was quarantined for 28 days.
May 26, 2004/Rochester, New York: A baboon at the Seneca Park Zoo escaped from a cage and climbed into nearby trees before he was tranquilized.

March 18, 2004/Dallas, Texas: A 300-pound gorilla named Jabari escaped from an enclosure surrounded by a 16-foot concave wall at the Dallas Zoo and attacked four people. A 3-year-old boy was critically injured as a result of multiple bites to his head and chest. The gorilla bit the boy's mother on her legs and threw her and the toddler against the wall. Another woman suffered injuries to her arms when she shielded several children from the gorilla. The fourth injured person was a child who was treated at the scene. Police evacuated 300 people and fatally shot the gorilla after he charged at officers. Some children had reportedly been teasing Jabari before the incident.

January 19, 2004/Los Angeles, California: The Los Angeles Zoo evacuated 9,000 visitors after an 80-pound chimpanzee named Gracie escaped from her enclosure for the fifth time. She was loose for 45 minutes before being tranquilized and recaptured.

January 8, 2004/Denver, Colorado: A gorilla named Evelyn escaped from an enclosure at the Denver Zoo and entered the keepers’ area, where she spent 45 minutes before being tranquilized. Evelyn was originally from the Los Angeles Zoo and had escaped several times while at that facility.

December 27, 2003/St. Leonard, Maryland: A man was taken to the hospital for treatment after being bitten on the thumb by a pigtailed macaque who was being kept as a house “pet.”

October 30, 2003/Savannah, Georgia: Exhibitor Brian Staples was cited by the U.S. Department of Agriculture for the escape of a spider monkey at the Georgia Coastal Fair. The monkey ran through the fair midway, a public area, before being recaptured.

October 19, 2003/Stamford, Connecticut: A 170-pound “pet” chimpanzee bolted from his owner’s sport utility vehicle in a busy downtown street. A dozen police cruisers were called to the scene as the chimpanzee charged officers and the crowds. He was recaptured two hours later.

September 28, 2003/Boston, Massachusetts: A gorilla named Little Joe escaped from an enclosure in Boston’s Franklin Park Zoo, grabbed a toddler from a young woman’s arms, then threw the child to the ground and jumped on her. Little Joe led more than 50 police officers and zoo staff members on a massive two-hour chase through darkened woods and along a nearby street outside the zoo. He finally collapsed after being shot repeatedly with tranquilizer darts and was returned to the zoo. The toddler required several stitches for a gash in her head. The gorilla also bit a zoo visitor on the back and attempted to attack other zoo staff members who were huddled in fear inside the ticket booth. Little Joe had also escaped during the previous month.

August 26, 2003/Rochester, New York: The Seneca Park Zoo evacuated visitors after a 300-pound orangutan escaped from a cage. During his 15-minute escape, the orangutan picked up a zoo volunteer, carried him into the cage, and then pushed him back out.

August 13, 2003/Boston, Massachusetts: Little Joe, a gorilla at Boston’s Franklin Park Zoo, scaled a 20-foot rock wall and escaped from the ape enclosure. He was recaptured 10 minutes later.

August 8, 2003/Chicago, Illinois: A “pet” monkey who escaped from her home was chased for much of the day by police and animal control officers before being cornered in a stairwell and captured in a net. An animal control officer was bitten by the monkey during the capture.

Primate Incidents in the United States

September 25, 2000/Maryville, Tennessee: A girl was treated at a hospital for a bite wound to her arm inflicted by her stepfather’s “pet” Japanese snow macaque.

September 23, 2000/Jarratt, Virginia: Three escaped monkeys threw fruit at vehicles traveling the interstate. After police arrived at the scene, the monkeys dashed across the interstate and disappeared into the woods.

August 29, 2000/Washington, D.C.: A 260-pound orangutan, Junior, climbed down a tower at the National Zoo and wandered the zoo grounds for 45 minutes while nearly 100 zoo visitors were herded into buildings. He was shot with a tranquilizer dart and recaptured.

August 15, 2000/Sprague, West Virginia: A “pet” chimpanzee escaped from a cage for three hours, biting a teenager on the hand and biting a neighbor who had tried to restrain the 150-pound animal. The same chimpanzee had escaped in July 1998 and attacked a postal truck, forcing the driver to flee and causing the truck to crash.

August 12, 2000/Jessamine County, Kentucky: A woman who was eight months pregnant was hospitalized after one of her two “pet” rhesus macaques suddenly turned violent while a cage was being cleaned and bit the woman’s nose. The woman was given an anti-viral medication, which was a hazard to her pregnancy, in case the monkey tested positive for herpes B. She had been inspired to purchase “pet” monkeys when, as a child, she saw monkeys riding bicycles in a circus.

August 8, 2000/San Angelo, Texas: A capuchin “went crazy” and bit his owner. The owner shot the monkey seven or eight times, killing him. This is the same monkey who bit a neighbor on January 9, 1998.

August 3, 2000/Southwest Ranches, Florida: A “pet” spider monkey escaped from a cage and attacked two teenage girls. The girls were treated at the hospital for scratch and bite wounds to their faces, heads, and arms. The monkey was captured the next day. The same monkey had attacked a woman six months earlier.

August 1, 2000/Dover, Wisconsin: A “pet” Japanese macaque got loose and attacked two people. The monkey grabbed a neighbor around the waist and inflicted four bite wounds to the leg. Moments later, the monkey bit a postal carrier on the hand. The monkey was captured and killed.

July 24, 2000/Dallas, Texas: A chimpanzee was electrocuted after escaping from a habitat at the Dallas Zoo. She scratched a zookeeper, who required hospital treatment, and climbed a telephone pole. The zookeeper fired at the great ape with a shotgun, and a veterinarian fired a tranquilizer at the animal, causing her to fall. She was electrocuted as she grabbed for a power line.

July 18, 2000/Jefferson City, Missouri: A 7-year-old boy, riding his bicycle, was attacked by a neighbor’s “pet” rhesus macaque, who jumped from a tree and bit the boy’s arm. The child was subjected to a two-month ordeal involving doctors, needles, tests, and the fear of contracting the deadly herpes B virus. The boy later received a $148,000 settlement from a lawsuit filed by his family.
